The No Child Left Behind Act of 2001 (NCLB) recognizes that teacher quality is one of the most important factors in improving student achievement and sets the goals that all students be taught by a "highly qualified teacher." NCLB requires states to develop a definition of "highly qualified teacher" through the High Objective Uniform State Standard of Evaluation (HOUSSE) system. (<http://ptsb.state.wy.us>)

Using Wyoming's HOUSSE system it is determined that you are highly qualified in the following areas:
