

Introduction to Multimedia

PowerPoint Test

Part II: Application

Due: Saved to your Introduction to Multimedia folder as "lastname" (example, mine would be saved as "janes") by the beginning of class NEXT MONDAY.

For this assignment you will be creating a PowerPoint 2003 presentation about a topic of special interest to you. I'll leave the actual details up to you, but you might want to include such information as:

- Favorite Sport
- Favorite Musical Artist
- Career goals
- Your Future Plans
- Family
- Travel
- Pets

It will NOT be about "Where I learn" or "My Hobbies." But you should look at some of those presentations to get some ideas. As you select your topic, please keep in mind that the final presentation will be presented in class, so you may want to be careful about including any private information (you should know what that means by now!). All content will be school-appropriate.

Your presentation must include the following:

- Your name and the course name (Introduction to Multimedia) must be on the title slide
- Minimum of 10 PowerPoint slides - maximum of 18
- At least three different slide layouts -- of which at least two must be from the "Auto-Layouts" that come with PowerPoint.
- At least one transition effect when you move from slide to slide - show must be set up to play automatically with a pre-determined interval for each slide. This interval can be different for each slide -- it's up to you to determine the appropriate amount of time.
- At least two different type fonts
- A color scheme [fonts, background, etc.] on at least one slide that it is different from the rest - the presentation will be evaluated on its "readability". Keep this in mind when you select fonts, background colors or patterns.
- At least one use of bullets at different indentation levels
- At least one clipart image [can come from ClipArt Gallery or elsewhere so long as the image is not restricted by copyright]
- At least one animation effect on one slide [use the animation effects that come with PowerPoint].
- No spelling or grammatical errors.

You will be evaluated on the above, plus:

- Clarity - since all information will be delivered by the slides themselves they must be self explanatory.
- Creativity.
- Appropriate amount of text & graphics per slide -- slides are not overcrowded and can be fully comprehended in the number of seconds they are on the screen.

Good luck and remember you can come talk to me if you have any questions.
